

At home he was always his usual size. So he drew the door to his room. There was a long mirror on the back of the door. "Yes," said Harold. "I am my usual size." He was glad to be back in his room. He was tired. But he had no picture to hang on his wall. So, before he went to bed, he drew another picture.